

As a host, how can you stay calm?

Tipp von Oliver Friedrich

Drink lots of wine! No, I'm only joking. Being a host is more a vocation than a profession. I actually believe that a true host is polite, attentive and thoughtful in all circumstances. They would help a child cross the street, give their seat to an elderly lady on the tram, or help their friends with serving when invited for a meal. It's in their flesh and blood, part of their being – which is why being a host is never a burden, it simply comes naturally.
