

The question to end all questions: does red wine go with fish?

Tipp von Oliver Friedrich

If you're eating gently cooked freshwater fish, I would generally agree with the received wisdom that white wine is a better match. However, if you're serving saltwater fish with strongly flavoured side dishes and sauces, there can be no doubt that a red will create the tension needed to make the meal even more interesting. Give it a try!